WATER TREATMENT

THE OCEANARIUM

The largest aquarium in Europe and a lifelike part of the North Sea, that has been moved indoor. Aqua-Teknik was main contractor for water treatment, electricity, ventilation and cooling.

In December 2003 the North Sea Museum and the complete aquarium burned down.

Aqua-Teknik was again chosen as main contractor and today everything has again come to live.

The water treatment system is also feeding the breeding basins, where biological experts are looking after the "inhabitants".

Everything is monitored and controlled by CMS system, installed by Aqua-Teknik.
